Challenge Course

Low Ropes Course

The WSU Low Ropes Course contains 13 elements built specifically to help explore the inner dynamics of your group. The elements are diverse and vary greatly in the degree of physical and mental involvement required for a group to succeed. This allows the facilitator to sequence the elements to fit the specific needs and wants of your group. Many of the Low Ropes elements are designed to get participants a few feet off the ground, creating an atmosphere of elevated risk, which fosters an environment for groups to focus on communication and trust.

Relationships are built and expanded on the course through strategic planning and problem solving. Learning takes place through open communication and allows group members to form greater self-awareness about their own role within the group and the individual strengths and weaknesses of their peers.
