

Teaching Handouts: Writing in Another Person's Voice

Name a person that you know well:

List the person's favorite sayings, words or phrases:

List pieces of language that this person might say while doing something:

List pieces of a typical conversation that you remember having with this person:

Answer the following questions as if you were this person. Answer in a manner that you think would match this person's personality:

What places are important to you?

What objects or possessions do you value?

What types of things do you fear?

What types of things do you dream of doing?

What types of things would you rather not reveal to others?