Ohio’s Commitment

College credit for military training and experience

Ohio’s Public Institutions are committed to the acceptance and awarding of college credit for military training, experience, and coursework. The Chancellor of the Ohio Department of Higher Education signed a directive providing a baseline set of standards and procedures for the application of military credit. Having one set of standards and procedures serves to provide uniformity and consistency to the process, makes it easier to communicate with and reach a wider audience, and highlights the priority the higher education community places on assisting veterans and active duty service members with their educational and career goals.

In June of 2013, Governor John R. Kasich signed Executive Order 2013-05R to support Ohio’s veterans by ensuring they are receiving the appropriate credit and credentialing for their military training and experience.

“Thanks! I saw a job post from them on the OMJ web site that was exactly what I was looking for. I went from application to hired in 2 weeks (at a salary over what I told them I was looking for). So now I have a couple more weeks off then get back to work. I'm very excited about working there. So meeting you at my TAP class was the best thing that could have happened. I had a place to start looking.”

Is Education Your Next Step

Veteran Services on Ohio Campuses

Many of Ohio’s colleges and universities have established programs to support veteran students on their campus, and are among the best in the nation. Ohio’s Public Institutions will continue to work with all of our higher education institutions to implement these practices wherever possible.

A key to that effort will be ensuring good communication across the system for both veterans looking to enroll in school and university/college staff who work with veteran students at each institution. In order to better connect students and faculty to the types of services available across the Ohio’s Public Institutions, we’ve provided a list of each institution’s veteran office contact information, as well as web links (below).

MyVeteran Communities bring together local Veterans service providers, resources, advocates, and other stakeholders to improve outcomes for Veterans, Service members, and their families.

VA may be the catalyst for community movements, but each community owns and leads the effort.
