Nurses' degree path eased at Wright State. "We've stepped up, we're reorganized, and, we're ready." May 2012, Megan Pant @ Dayton Daily News.

How's the food in your school? In addition to cutting back on physical education and other outdoor activities, research shows schools may be contributing to the obesity epidemic in another way: Students who regularly eat at school are at higher risk of being overweight. "We need to quit letting kids run the school lunchroom," said Ann Stalter, a nursing professor at Wright State University. "Kids who brown bag are leaner kids." Front page Sunday paper, December 6, 2010, Chris Mangan @Dayton Daily News
