Join us as we discuss our spring reading selection, Dear Sister: Letters from Survivors of Sexual Violence, edited by Lisa Factora-Borchers. There will also be readings from the book by Lisa Factora-Borchers and Andrea Harris, Wright State faculty member who has a selection included in the book. Factora-Borchers wanted to put this work together due to her work as a legal and medical advocate for survivors of sexual violence. With this collection of stories she hopes to speak to survivors of sexual violence and those who support them. Dear Sister makes a compelling argument by harmonizing different voices about justice, sexuality, and healing. The anthology highlights the diversity in how one goes about their survival, and speaks to the unpatterned and complex nature of everyday healing.

Participants are welcome to attend the reading, discussion or both, depending on their schedule. Books are available for students on a first come, first served basis; visit the Women's Center, 148 Millett Hall, to pick up a copy.
