

A portrait of Paul K. Chappell, a man with dark, wavy hair and a light beard, wearing a white polo shirt with thin blue horizontal stripes. He is looking directly at the camera with a serious expression. The background is a soft-focus outdoor scene with green foliage.

"Capt. Paul K. Chappell has given us a crucial look at war and peace from the unique perspective of a soldier, and his new ideas show us why world peace is both necessary and possible in the 21st century. [He] can help people everywhere understand why war must end, and how together we can end it."
—Archbishop Desmond Tutu

World Peace Is Possible

Exploring the Anatomy of Violence and War

Paul K. Chappell's paradigm-shifting presentation examines whether human beings are naturally violent or naturally peaceful, the causes of aggression and violence, every army's greatest problem, why war drives people insane, the myths that perpetuate war, and why we must wage peace to solve our 21st century problems.

Paul K. Chappell is a West Point graduate, Iraq War veteran, and former army captain who serves as Peace Leadership Director of the Nuclear Age Peace Foundation. Part African-American, part Asian, and part Caucasian, Chappell grew up in a violent household in Alabama with a father who fought in the Korean and Vietnam wars. Chappell's most recent book in his seven book Road to Peace series is The Art of Waging Peace.
