For twenty-three years Tyra Patterson was imprisoned for crimes that new evidence indicated she did not commit.

She was released last year on Christmas Day.

Patterson insisted she was innocent of the killing, and over the years lawyers, politicians and celebrities took up her cause in an "I am Tyra Patterson" campaign.

The parole board cited support for her among the community in granting her release.

Patterson will be joined by her attorney, David Singleton, Executive Director of the Ohio Justice and Policy Center, who spearheaded the team to help get Tyra her freedom.
