(B&N). There are two methods by which students may purchase textbooks and materials from B&N and fund the purchase through their Wright State University account. The first method is for the textbook affordability initiative, where students are provided with course materials on the first day of class, which are procured by B&N at or below list price and billed with the student's tuition and fees. WSU collects the fees as they are billed to the students account, the funds are then remitted to B&N. The second method is via the use of the student's Wright One card. Students may deposit funds through WSU on the Wright One Card and use their card in the bookstore for textbooks or any other materials. The university reimburses B&N.
